

Privacy Statement

To Summarize everything below, we will NEVER sell your information or provide it to a third party, period.

Cointinuum utilizes the Internet as a tool to provide individuals, prospects and customers access to information about our products and services. Cointinuum also allows qualified customers to use the Internet to access certain information products. Cointinuum and its associates, employees, and affiliates follow the practices described below in order to safeguard the use of individual information collected on our websites. For more information on each of these practices please contact info@cointinuum.org

For the purposes of this policy, Cointinuum defines the term “prospect” as a business that does not have an established relationship with Cointinuum and the term “customer” as a business or representative of a business, with which Cointinuum does have an established relationship.

Information Collection—From time to time, Cointinuum may ask individuals, prospects and customers to provide personal information that will help Cointinuum efficiently perform various business transactions. That information may be sought as you:

- Request information from Cointinuum or Bit Real Estate Exchange, LLC
- Register for a free trial or demonstration of certain products and services
- Sign up or subscribe to products and services
- Participate in a special offer or contest

Use of Personal Information—The information you share with Cointinuum will be used to support the customer relationship you have with Cointinuum but will not be provided to third parties. At some of Cointinuum websites, technologies such as “session and/or persistent cookies” may be used to deliver a more customized experience.

Choices on the Use of Personal Information— Cointinuum pledges to clearly outline the choices you have when you register for a product or service. Cointinuum also gives you the option to opt-out from third party share of your information. At the time of registration, you may choose to opt-out of receiving e-mail from Cointinuum about other products and services. You may also exercise your opt-out choice at any time.

Accuracy & Security— Cointinuum enables you to view all the retrievable information you have provided Cointinuum and correct it should there be changes or errors in the information. Cointinuum uses strict security systems to prevent information from being made available to any unauthorized person or business. Cointinuum information systems are constantly monitored for inappropriate access from unauthorized users through the use of intrusion detection and monitoring systems.

If you want to know more about Cointinuum and our information practices, contact us by phone, mail or via the Internet at: info@cointinuum.org

As Cointinuum develops our business; there may be a change of control of Cointinuum or divisions, subsidiaries, affiliates or portions of Cointinuum. In this situation, customer information is typically considered a transferable asset. Also, in the unlikely occurrence that Cointinuum or a part of its divisions, affiliates or subsidiaries are purchased, customer information will be one of the transferred assets.

Cointinuum reserves the right to make changes to our online privacy policy as business or technical needs require. In the future, should Cointinuum decide to use your information in a substantially new way, we will notify you based on the email address you provided and offer you the opportunity to opt-out of the new use.